

End-of-Year Inventory

Lots of people make New Year's Resolutions, but most people don't take the time to reflect on the year that has passed. As a new year begins, we're often in such a hurry to "fix" ourselves and our lives that we don't stop to take stock of the year that's ending. Often, we just make last year's resolutions over again, and end up a year later in the same situation with the same goals and the same frustrations.

When you hurry ahead into a new year without looking back, you're likely to miss out on reaping the benefits of the previous year. Here's a tool that will help you harvest the learning and "gold" from the year that's drawing to a close.

Find a comfortable spot where you can work uninterrupted. Write down answers to the following prompts. You might write more than one answer to each prompt.

Something I accomplished this year

Something I learned or remembered about myself this year

Something generous I did for someone else this year

Someone who helped me this year

Something that surprised me this year

Someone new who came into my life this year

A person or an experience who/that was a great teacher for me this year

A skill I developed this year

A question this year brought up for me

A contribution I made at work/in my career this year

A risk I took this year

A choice I'm glad I made this year

A choice I regret making this year

An opportunity I took advantage of this year

An opportunity I missed or didn't take full advantage of this year

An obstacle I broke through or removed from my life this year

Someone or something I wish I'd "shown up for" better this year

Something that made me feel lucky this year

Something I didn't appreciate enough this year

Something that made me laugh this year

Something fun I did this year

Someone I forgot to thank this year

Something I let go of this year

Something I wish I had taken action on this year (but didn't)

What I am most proud of this year

Adjectives/qualities that best describe who or how I was this year

Something I always want to remember about this year

A word that encapsulates 2015: This was the year of _____.

Based on what you wrote and/or discovered, what specific, manageable action steps do you need to take to feel “complete” with 2015?

Based on what you wrote and/or discovered, what made 2015 a success for you—a step forward on your path in life?

Based on what you wrote and/or discovered, what do you want to keep doing or repeat from 2015?

Based on what you wrote and/or discovered, what do you want to stop doing or change in 2016?

Based on what you wrote and/or discovered, what has 2015 set you up to achieve or take on in 2016?

Congratulations on taking the time to reflect on 2015! Here’s to a wonderful new year ahead!
